One of the most exciting places someone could visit is Angkor, a region in the country of Cambodia. Angkor used to be the centre of an old empire called the Khmer empire which was in power from around 800 AD to 1200 AD. In 2007 researchers from many different countries used technology, like satellite photographs, and found that Angkor had been the largest city in the world until the 1800's. 1) ____ They believe that close to one million people lived in the city.

The houses of the city were made from wood and cannot be seen today. However, the Khmer empire spent 300 years producing amazing temples and other structures in the area of Angkor from bricks and sandstone which visitors can still see today. In the area there are 72 major temples and other buildings, as well as the remains of hundreds of smaller temples. Today, Angkor is mostly covered by forest and does not have hotels for people to spend the night. Visitors usually stay in Siem Reap and travel to the forested area of Angkor to visit the temples. 2) ____

Once there, visitors can choose from several different ways of visiting the sites. There are tour buses and cars with guides which usually cost between 20–60 euro for the day. Motorcycles and Tuk tuks can also be hired. Tuk tuks look like motorcycles, but they have three wheels and fit three people, instead of two like motorcycles. 3) ____ This of course is a bit more expensive, so be prepared to spend around 90 euro for the basic 12-minute tour. There are also more traditional ways of getting around. 4) ____ If someone wants to visit Bayon temple, for example, they either have to walk up the hill it is built on, or take an elephant ride up.

Of the many temples, there are a few which attract the most visitors. The Buddhist temple Ta Prohm is an example. 5) ____ Trees that are hundreds of years old have grown in and around the temple. Their roots grow through the stones splitting them apart. It is interesting because the temple and the trees become one.

Another temple, and the most known of all in Angkor, is Angkor Wat. This temple was built in the 12th century in honor of the Hindu god Vishnu and later was used as a Buddhist temple. It is the largest temple in the world built on land 1.5 kilometres in length. The people of Cambodia are very proud of this structure and it can also be seen on the Cambodian flag.

UNESCO, a United Nations Organization which tries to protect important sites, has declared Angkor as a World Heritage site.
